Colin Goldberg

Painter and digital artist · North Bennington, Vermont · goldberg.art

Ebisu, 2026. Acrylic and archival inkjet on linen, 36 × 64 in. Courtesy the artist and Helmholz Fine Art.

Short bio

Colin Goldberg is a painter and digital artist based in North Bennington, Vermont. He coined the term Techspressionism in 2011 and founded the international art movement of that name. His work has been featured by WIRED and PBS and is in the Hearst Corporation collection.

Key facts

- Based: North Bennington, Vermont, studio in a historic mill
- Represented in Vermont by: Helmholz Fine Art
- Known for: coining "Techspressionism" (2011), founding the movement (salons since September 2020)
- Education: MFA, Computer Art, Bowling Green State University, 2008
- Collections: Hearst Corporation (Kneeling Icon, 2023); Verostko Center for the Arts
- Book: Metagraphs, foreword by Paul D. Miller aka DJ Spooky
- Upcoming: Techspressionism 2027: New Visual Languages, Mémoire de l'Avenir, Paris, January 22 – March 27, 2027

Quotes

"works that are both energetically rhythmic and elegantly choreographed"
Eric Ernst, Hamptons Art Hub, 2014

"Movement implies momentum, and Techspressionism certainly has that."
Helen Harrison, longtime Director, Pollock-Krasner House and Study Center

"has pioneered and championed the 'techspressionist' movement"
Danielle M. Crosier, Bennington Banner, 2025

---

Press contact: studio@goldberg.art · Press kit and high-resolution images: goldberg.art/press-kit/